Facilities at the university

RESEARCH FACILITIES (IT, LABORATORIES)

The University has at its disposal more than 40 engineering laboratories of which a large number have been modernized via EU projects. They can be used not only for educational purposes, but also to promote scientific collaboration with companies in the region. Moreover, free internet access is available for all students of the University and there are numerous rooms equipped with computers both for academic instruction and for use by students.

LIBRARY

The library as the university’s education and research support background institution completely fulfills its function with its state-of-the-art equipment, both collecting and cataloguing documents as well as providing the technical and IT background.

Over the 4.500 m² space at the disposal of users there are around 750 seats, 250 computers with wifi internet access, 300,000 documents (books, theses, PhDs, standards, CDs and DVDs), 500 journals, both separated and common study areas, six media-boxes and 15 research rooms.

Besides printed documents, there are 41 online, mostly full-text databases covering the university’s entire educational materials. Most databases can be used on-campus, some only in the library.

HALLS OF RESIDENCE

The seven buildings (5 on campus and 2 off campus), provide accommodation for 3,000 students in double occupancy rooms. This structure makes it suitable to accommodate paying guests as well, especially in the summer.

The two new buildings (K0 and K1) house 560 rooms, arranged in two-room apartments. Each apartment has a bathroom. The units are so arranged that from the entrance hall separate entrances lead to the bathroom, the toilet and the two rooms. Large well-equipped communal kitchens are situated on each corridor and a laundry room fitted with washing machines and dryers is also available for the convenience of students.

The new on-campus Hall of Residence provides high-standard accommodation for all international students who request it. The aim was to create a complex space which students can regard as not only as a dormitory but also as a “home” where everything is available for them: learning, entertainment and culture.
